

ALL LUDINGTON IS IN MOURNING

FOR TWENTY-EIGHT WHO LOST THEIR LIVES.

IN MYSTERIOUS DISASTER

Horror of Pere Marquette Disaster Seldom Equaled in the Annals of Lake Navigation.

Ludington, Mich., Sept. 10.—This town is in mourning today for the twenty-eight persons, mostly Ludington residents, who went down in the mysterious wreck of Pere Marquette Car Ferry No. 18. Preparations are being made for the burial or shipment of the bodies brought here with the thirty-three survivors. The town has not recovered today from the horror of the story brought in last night by Ferry No. 17.

The cause of the sinking of the Pere Marquette will probably never be fully determined. It is declared today that the disaster was not due to the storm, or to over loading or to a breakdown in the machinery. The first intimation that anything was wrong came at four a. m. when the wheelman noticed the vessel was not responding properly. It was then discovered that a compartment aft of the engine room contained considerable water. As the vessel continued to settle distress signals were sent out and lifeboats were lowered but not cut away. An effort to reach the shore was continued.

When Ferry No. 17 reached the scene it was merely evidently not by Captain Killy evidently not by leaving his vessel in immediate danger. Captain Russell of 17, however, seeing that the vessel was sinking lowered lifeboats and picked up those who jumped or were thrown from the doomed vessel when she sank. There were sixty-two persons aboard at the time of the disaster.

STOPPED ILLEGAL SHIPMENT OF OIL

Twelve Barrels of Gasoline Held Up in Clinton by Deputy Oil Inspector, R. J. Maltress.

R. J. Maltress, deputy oil inspector, was in the city today on his way from Clinton, where he had been attending to some matters regarding a shipment of twelve barrels of gasoline, which were illegally shipped into the state and which he had ordered held there. The infractors of the law in this shipment were that the gasoline was shipped in barrels painted black and labeled kerosene, instead of red with the word "Gasoline" and had not been inspected as the law requires. The oil, it is alleged, was shipped out by the Petroleum Products Sales company of Cleveland, Ohio, to Clinton, from which point the shipment was to be divided up into smaller shipments and sent to various parts of the state.

MAINE CONTEST WILL BE CLOSE

AND LOCAL ISSUES ARE VERY SHARPLY DEFINED

DEMOCRATS ARE HOPEFUL

Their Gubernatorial Candidate, Plaied, Has Four Times Been Elected Mayor Of Republican Augusta.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Augusta, Me., Sept. 10.—With a feeling of almost equal confidence on the part of both Republicans and Democrats, and with clearly defined issues of local rather than national importance, the voters of Maine will cast their ballots Monday for governor, representatives in Congress, State auditor and a legislature that will choose a successor to Senate Eugene Hale. Many county officials also will be elected.

Republicans all over the country have their eyes fixed upon this election, which will be taken as indicative of the drift of general public sentiment. If the Democrats should show gains over two years ago—should elect one of their representatives in Congress, as they are confident of doing—such an outcome following the Democratic gain in the Passaic district in New York and the DeArmond district in Missouri would make their jubilation country-wide, and undoubtedly impetus would be given to the Democratic campaign in all the States this fall.

The heads of both tickets are well known from Kittery to the Panama-quoddy. For Berierich W. Plaksted, the Democratic candidate, is one of the most widely known men of Maine. He is a son of Harris M. Plaksted, who was elected governor of Maine in 1880 by a fusion of Greenbackers and Democrats. Mr. Plaksted the younger, has four times been elected mayor of the strongly Republican city of Augusta.

As in former years the liquor question and rebusimism of the constitution amendment to the people plays an important part in the campaign, though this issue is probably not so paramount as in previous years. The Republicans stand for enforcement of the liquor law and the Sargis commission, while the Democrats are making their fight on the rebusimism to the people of the liquor issue. The Democratic candidate for governor also advocates the enactment of a primary law after the Oregon plan and improvements in the ballot law.

The Democrats are concentrating their main efforts on the capture of the First and Second congressional districts. In the former the Republican candidate is Asher C. Hinds, who has gained fame as the parliamentarian of the national house of representatives. The Democrats have nominated William F. Penwell, former sheriff of Cumberland county, who is popular with the masses. In the Second district Representatives John P. Swaney, who is serving his first term, has been renominated. Mr. Swaney is looked upon as a "standpatter," and this is expected to cost him votes among the liberal element of his party.

The Democratic candidates in the Second is D. J. McGillicuddy, of Lewiston, who is recognized as one of the ablest lawyers of the Maine bar. In the Third and Fourth districts the reelection of Representatives Burleigh and Guernsey, the Republican incumbents, is believed to be assured.

The legislative ticket this year is regarded as of extraordinary importance, owing to the fact that the incoming body will have the choosing of a United States senator. It is conceded by both sides that the legislature will be more evenly divided than two years ago. At that time the Republicans elected 99 of the 151 members of the house of representatives and 25 of the 31 State senators, thus having a majority of 62 on joint ballot. This would seem to be too wide a margin for the Democrats to wipe out, but it is to be remembered that many of the Republican candidates were elected by the narrowest margins. In some cases only a dozen votes out of it would not require much of a Democratic wave this year to effect a considerable change in the complexion of the legislature.

The Republicans have a spirited contest on among themselves for the senatorship. Judge Frederick Powers of Houlton and former Gov. William T. Cobb of Rockland both want to succeed Senator Hale. Powers made an early start, and thus gained the inside track, but Cobb, who is a close friend of Hale, has the powerful backing of that statesman and all of his friends. Powers is regarded as a progressive Republican and Cobb is looked upon as a conservative. Should the two factions reach a deadlock it is possible that Congressman Burleigh might be agreed upon as a compromise candidate. The Burleigh candidacy is already looked upon with favor by many quarters.

Among the Democrats named as possible Hale successors in the event the legislature should go Democratic are Charles F. Johnson of Waterville; Obadiah Gardner, of Rockland, nominee for governor two years ago, and W. R. Pattengill, of Waterville, tomorrow.

Won't Economize on Daylight.
A year ago quite a furore was made over the proposed plan, which if not to prolong our days by setting the clock hands an hour ahead in early summer and back again to first principles when the sun resumed getting up late mornings. The daylight-saving bill was seriously considered in parliament, but failed to become law, although Birmingham, England, and Cincinnati, O., actually passed ordinances. Both cities after a futile attempt to enforce the undesirable measure, repealed it. The idea, which like most fads, was not without its good features, was given the widest possible publicity in the press, but public opinion was against it. The interesting thing is how soon the pendulum swings to the other extreme, for in the space of 12 months a most talked-of incident has become the most forgotten.—Popular Mechanics.

What Can City Boys Do?
City boys get no chance at all in the trades. The argument of the unions is that they are being constantly subjected to the pressure from the country, where the boys learn the trades and then come to the city. But what are our city boys to do? Shall they all grow up to be cigarette-smoking clerks and loafers? I would like to see some practical use made of the manual training facilities in the schools for which the city has put out so much money. Teach the boys in the schools the useful trades. We can't all be clerks or bookkeepers or lecturers. Some must work.—Leslie's.

Not in Any Hurry.
We have been advised to quit smoking gradually. We tried that six years ago, and we are still quitting gradually.—Acheson Globe.

And the Conductor Said—
The conductor on a Dorchester car was very hot and tired, and his car was so crowded he had hard work collecting the fares; so when he came along and saw a man standing on the running board and a little three-year-old child occupying an end seat near him he said combatively, "You'll have to give me a fare for that little girl." "I'm sorry," said the man calmly, "but I refuse to do it." A heated argument followed, during which the conductor demanded his rights and the man calmly refused. At last the latter said with a laugh: "One reason why I won't pay for the child is that she is not mine and she is not with me."—Boston Herald.

The Yorkshire Hog.
Tests made by the Wisconsin experiment station show that Yorkshire hogs require the least amount of food for 100 pounds of gain of either Poland Chinas or Yorkshires. Common stock hogs made the smallest gains and ate the least food.

Our Increasing Longevity.
Although at the present time no one ever attains the marvelous old ages credited to some people of past centuries, the length of the average life is increasing. Investigators in the United States and in England have discovered that in 1880 5.8 per cent. of all persons were over sixty; in 1890 this class constituted 6.2 per cent., and in 1900 the number comprised nearly 6.5 per cent. of the population.

Keep the Dogs Away.
Put up signs warning dog owners to keep their beasts off your land, and then do not hesitate to use the shotgun whenever one appears.

If sheepmen in every county in the sheep-raising districts, were well organized, they could easily induce the state legislature to pass laws that would dispose of three-fourths of all the dogs that worry them.

THE OVERLAND CAR

ECONOMICAL—RELIABLE

Overland cars are made as watches are made, by modern automatic machinery. Thus exactness is obtained to the ten-thousandth part of an inch. All parts are interchangeable. One of these cars has been run 7,000 miles without even stopping the engine. Many an owner has run up to 10,000 miles without even cleaning a spark plug.

These sort of facts, told by owners to others, have created the wonderful demand for these marvelous cars. A 25-horse power Overland, with 102 inch wheel base now sells for $1,000. A 40 horse power Overland, with 112 inch wheel base sells for $1,250 with single rumble seat. The finest of the Overlands—called the Marion Overland—sells for $1,500. All prices include gas lamps and magnets.

We invite you to come and see these cars—the cars that have captured the country. You will agree with the rest in regarding the Overlands as the most desirable cars that are made.

Pittsburg, Pa.—With Ketchel practically out of the running since his physical collapse, the question arising was who will succeed to middleweight honors. Langford, Billy Papke and others are looked upon favorably, but eastern fight fans who have seen Frank Klaus in action pick him to rule the division.

Klaus is a clean fighter and clean liver. He is going to the coast this fall and his future will be decided. If Ketchel is sufficiently recovered to again don the gloves Manager Engel will endeavor to get a fight with Ketchel. If not, Klaus will fight the best man in sight.

THE 1911 CADILLAC "30" IS HERE

THE CAR THAT HAS GIVEN UNIVERSAL SATISFACTION. THE CAR THAT HAS A RECORD FOR LOW COST OF UP-KEEP. NOW READY FOR DEMONSTRATION. CALL AND SEE IT. IT IS WORTH LOOKING AT.

A SEEMING CONTRADICTION

What could be more significant, for instance, than the seeming contradiction of these two facts:

First, the Cadillac owners almost never change.
Second, that a majority of each year's buyers have never owned a Cadillac before.

This is literally true.
If you'll stop and think, can you recall a single Cadillac owner who transferred his allegiance to some other car?

And yet, we know, as we have said, that most of this year's Cadillac buyers have never owned a Cadillac before.

THE EXPLANATION

What is the explanation?
The very pleasing one that the Cadillac buyer gets more than a season's use out of his car—that most of last year's Cadillac buyers are driving the same car this year.

Speaking broadly, Cadillac cars do not deteriorate. If they are sold at the end of a season, they are sold for a high price. If they be exchanged, the exchange is usually generous.

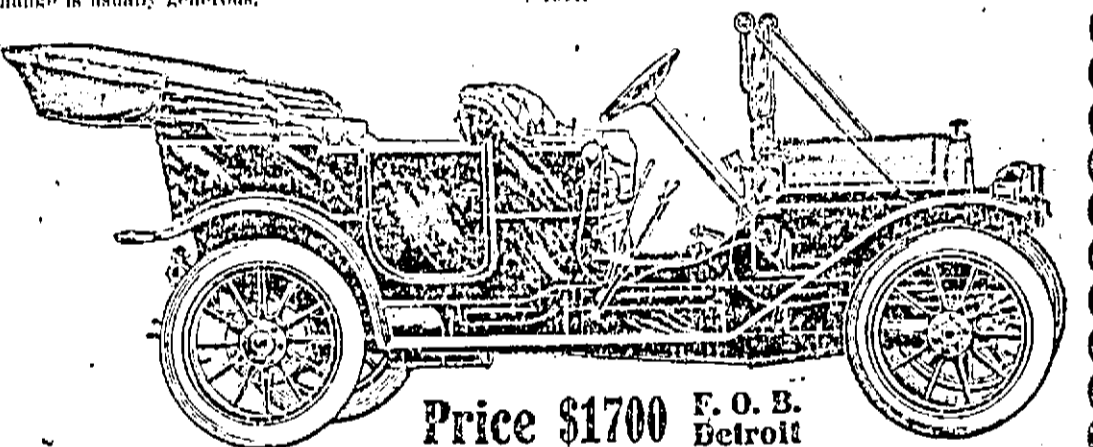

Last year's Cadillacs are in actual demand this year, in addition to the demand for the 1911 Cadillac. This year's sales will eat up each day's production as fast as completed and shipped.

Gather all these facts together and they will spell their own explanation. And that explanation is:

STANDARDIZATION

The Cadillac does not deteriorate because of the high state of standardization which exists in each part and in the union of all the parts. That is why so many Cadillac owners use their car a second season and a third and a fourth and continuously. That is also why so many who have owned cars of a higher price buy the Cadillac—a case of equal efficiency and greater economy. That, too, is why so large a proportion of new buyers choose the Cadillac. That is why the Cadillac owner says:—"If I had it to do over again, I would buy a Cadillac."

Standardization.—Perfect alignment of all the parts. Consequent removal of friction. The economy that results therefrom. That is the entire story of the success of last year's Cadillac, the Cadillac of the year before, and the magnificent Cadillac of 1911.

DUST BALLINGER PLEA

MADE BY TWO REPORTS

Committee Hopelessly Divided and Congress Will Get Three Findings.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 10.—The substance of the findings of the four Democratic members of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee, which were made public here, was: "That Richard A. Ballinger has not been true to the trust imposed in him as secretary of the interior, that he is not deserving of public confidence and that he should be requested by the proper authorities to resign his office."

The Republican members issued no report of any kind.

An independent report was given out by Mr. Madison, insurgent Republican from Kansas, which declares also that Mr. Ballinger "should not be retained, that he was an unfaithful trustee of the people's interest, an enemy of conservation," and that the charges of Clifford Pinchot should be sustained.

These findings will be printed and filed with congress.

The decision of the four Democratic members and Mr. Madison to make the reports public, followed a session which was unusual. Three Republican members, Senator Sutherland of Utah, and Representatives McCall of Massachusetts and Dunby of Michigan, refused to attend the meeting. Finally the chairman of the committee himself, Senator Nelson of Minnesota, left the committee room and failed to return.

Chairman Nelson gave notice that a meeting would be held in Chicago next Tuesday. The Democratic members adjourned to meet again in Washington on December 3. Representative Ollie M. James of Kentucky, one of the Democratic members, announced that all the Democrats would refuse to attend the meeting of which Senator Nelson has given notice. The Republicans will then be in the same position that the Democratic members and Mr. Madison found themselves here.

Why Men Wear Trousers.

No living man of this age ever deliberately chose to adopt "trousers." He was forced into them and all other eccentricities of dress by women. In the very earliest sartorial experience he is swathed in a queer bundle of incoherent bandages by a woman. Later she puts him in cute dresses so that the neighbors can't tell him from his little sister. Still later she cuts off his curls and puts him in knickerbockers, and he put on long pants when she gives the word, not before. That is all that man has to do with wearing trousers. Women forced him into them in the first place, and now he is afraid to wear anything else for fear of making a sensation.—Benton (Mo.) Democrat.

By inventing a hairpin the prongs of which normally are close together, but which may be sprung open to insert a Pennsylvania woman has designed a device more secure than plus of the usual form.

CHEERS FOR THE BROWNE VERDICT

EMOTIONAL CROWD WENT WILD AT CHICAGO.

DEFENDANT SHED TEARS

History of the Bribery Scandal Case Which Required Nine Verdicts of One Hundred Men.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Following the acquittal of Lee O'Neill Browne, State's Attorney Wayman of Cook county is today collecting evidence so that it can be used in the trial of Browne in Sangamon county on the charge of bribing Senator T. W. Holtzclaw.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—The jury's speedy verdict of "not guilty" in the second trial of Lee O'Neill Browne, leader of the majority in the Illinois legislature, on the charge of bribing Representative Charles A. White to vote for Senator Lochner, was a surprise to the many who had watched the progress of the second trial and had feared that a repetition of the tedious deliberations of the first jury would close the case.

The verdict was returned before Judge Kersten after the jury had deliberated a little over twenty-one hours.

Eight Ballots Taken. Altogether eight ballots were taken. The first poll showed them to 8 to 4 for acquittal and several ballots were taken thereafter with the same result. Then there was a slight change to 9 to 3. Later the vote was 11 to 1 and on the eighth poll the full 12-to-0 vote was recorded.

As the words "not guilty" fell from the clerk's lips a cheer went up. Scenes of confusion followed. It was with difficulty that the bullfinch restrained the crowd. It was then that Browne jumped from his chair, seized Attorney Erbstein around the neck and they embraced each other. A moment later Browne was torn from his counsel by his friends. They pushed him around the room in almost a frenzy to offer their congratulations. Browne then tried to reach the jury box to thank the jurors. "I thank," he began, but he did not finish, his emotions overcoming him. Tears ran down his face.

History of Sensational Case.

The second Browne trial started before Judge Kersten August 1. It was fought stubbornly by both sides every moment. After the customary motions to quash the indictment had been denied, impugning of a jury started August 4. This went along quietly for a fortnight and eight jurors had been selected, when it was discovered that investigators had been approaching prospective jurors and talking to them regarding the case.

A special grand jury was called and one indictment returned as a result of the charges of attempted jury tampering. Wholesale discharges of venire were also made by Judge Kersten to weed out prospective jurors who had been approached.

Nine Verdicts of 100 Drawn. After nine venire of 100 men each had been drawn and more than 500 men, who had reported in response to the summonses, had been examined, the jury was completed August 20.

Court immediately took a recess until the following morning and after an opening address of only an hour State's Attorney Wayman put White on as the first witness and the taking of testimony started August 22. The last testimony closed September 1 at 9:50 a. m. Court took a twenty-minute recess and State's Attorney Wayman plunged into the closing argument for the defense which occupied the remainder of the day.

William S. Forrest, chief counsel for the defense, occupied the following day. On September 3 the case was suddenly halted by the death of Judge Kersten's wife early that morning. It resumed again on the afternoon of September 6. Attorneys Charles E. Erbstein and Patrick H. O'Donnell spoke that day and the next one and then State's Attorney Wayman concluded his arguments.

Trial Is Costly.

The trial cost the county and the interests back of the defendant many thousands of dollars. Charges of perjury, trickery and a long category of offenses were handled back and forth on both sides. Two of the witnesses for the defense were indicted for perjury during the progress of the trial, one of them being Detective Patrick J. Kealey, who was at one time confidential aid to the state's attorney.

The first trial was before Judge McShure, who discharged the jury on June 29, after it had been out 116 hours and failed to agree. It stood 8 to 4 for "guilty." The trial had started June 6.

Browne was indicted by a special grand jury, May 6. The bribe was said to have been paid White at the Briggs house, June 16, 1909, in accordance with an agreement made May 26, 1909.

FEAR OF CHOLERA IS GROWING.

Federal Officers Take Stringent Measures to Protect United States.

Washington, Sept. 10.—The public health and marine hospital service is clearing for action to prevent the cholera now spreading through Russia, and more recently discovered in Germany and France, from being brought to this country. Officers of the service are more alarmed at the probabilities of the plague being imported by immigrants than they are willing to admit.

Orders have been flashed to the American consuls at Marseilles, Havre, Cherbourg, Genoa, Palermo and Messina to detain steerage passengers from all parts of Russia and their baggage for five days for disinfection and observation before they are allowed to take ship for the United States.

The guard at ports of entry in the United States is being doubled. Officers of the service have been dispatched to New York and Boston to consult with the quarantine officers there for special measures. Special instructions for the examination of vessels from ports suspected of infection or carrying passengers from infected districts have been sent to every quarantine officer in the service.

GIRL MAKES ENDURANCE RIDE.

Acting War Secretary Oliver and Daughter Complete 350-Mile Trip.

Washington, Sept. 10.—One of the longest endurance horseback rides ever taken by a woman has just been finished by Miss Marion Oliver, daughter of the acting secretary of war. Miss Oliver, who returned here, spoke in enthusiastic enjoyment of her long ride. With her, besides her father, on the trip, were Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, the society cross-country rider, and Captain Cheney of the White House staff. Three hundred and fifty miles of hard riding over the rugged Indian trails of Arizona and New Mexico made Miss Oliver's ride noteworthy. On account of the rough character of the riding Mrs. Wadsworth's feat of riding 212 miles in twenty hours was not excelled.

UHLAN TROTS A SPIEDY MILE.

Makes It in 2:01½ Hitched to Wagon.

—Last Quarter in 29.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 10.—Uhlans trotted another remarkable mile at Charter Oak park when he drew his owner, C. K. G. Billings, hitched to a speed wagon, in 2:01½. The wonderful flight of the new king of the sulky was seen in the last quarter, which he covered in 25 seconds, the same clip at which he finished his greatest mile, in 1:58½, at Cleveland just four weeks ago.

The Harvester played a very good second fiddle to the older trotter when he stopped the second heat of the free-for-all in 2:03. In this he came the last quarter in 30 seconds and had evidently a link or two left.

FRANK M. COUDEN DISCHARGED.

Quitting of Cincinnati Customs Cashier Echo of Wadsworth Case.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Frank M. Couden, cashier in the office of the surveyor of customs at Cincinnati, whose name was prominently mentioned in the Wadsworth embezzlement scandal in the Big Four railroad, was discharged. It is said that it was through the information of Couden that the Big Four railroad learned of the Wadsworth shortage. Later it developed to the satisfaction of treasury officials that Couden had known of the shortage for a long time before he had told of it.

BOWERS' PASSING LOSS TO COUNTRY

Probable Supreme Court Appointment Possessed One of the Brightest Legal Minds.

Boston, Sept. 10.—The death of Solicitor General Lloyd Bowers, who passed away suddenly at the Hotel Touraine yesterday, is a distinct loss to the nation.

Death came suddenly while Mr. Bowers was talking with his family. A blood clot in the heart caused almost instant death.

Mr. Bowers was mentioned as being the probable choice for the chief justiceship of the United States Supreme court left vacant by the death of Justice Brewer.

President Taft thought him one of the most thoroughly equipped lawyers in the country. He was informally quoted as declaring that: "The government should have the services of the best lawyers; that's why I got Bowers."

Attorney Bowers resigned as general counsel of the Chicago and North-western railroad, and gave up a salary of $31,000 to become solicitor general of the United States. He was born in Springfield, Mass., went to Yale, read law in New York, where he engaged in practice for a short time, then went to Dakota to recover his health. He met a lawyer in St. Paul and became his partner at Winona, where he remained nine years.

He severed connections with the law firm when he became counsel for the Northwestern road. President Taft appointed him solicitor general March 22, 1909.

He received national attention last March when alone he defended the constitutionality of the corporation tax provisions of the Payne-Aldrich tariff act before the Supreme court. Arrayed against him was a corps of the leading lawyers of the country, and the success of the solicitor general in presenting his case stamped him, so his friends assert, as certain of appointment to the Supreme court.

During his term as solicitor general no case which he argued was decided against him.

Mr. Bowers was a member of the Chicago and University clubs and also belonged to the Chicago Athletic club. He was president of the Chicago law club and also president of the Yale Alumni association of Chicago.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The events of the past week have included a primary election, participated in by about one-third of the voters of the state, and the spectacular tour of ex-President Roosevelt.

The primary election, while representing a minority vote, settled the question, however, of the status of the state by placing it in the progressive column with half a dozen other states of the middle west.

The aftermath of a political campaign is never pleasant history for defeated candidates, and the men who supported them, and in this instance it is difficult to realize that the principles of loyalty to the President and his administration were so lightly regarded.

But majority rule and the province of the minority is to submit gracefully, as will be done at the present time.

Men often differ on questions of public policy, and it is not surprising that there should be radical differences of opinion in the realm of politics at the present time.

The President of the United States is the target for all sorts of abuse and misrepresentation and a stampede has been culminated as the result of the campaign of ridicule which has been waged against him.

The "New Nationalism" has already become the slogan of men who deem themselves too good for their party, and the "Idol of the hour" is being urged to lead in the organization of a new party. That this movement is simply adding insult to injury to the man who now presides at the White House is not difficult to comprehend.

But this visionary dream of the men now flushed with victory will not be realized, for the sober second thought of the American people is yet to be expressed, and the man now in control of the destinies of the nation will not suffer by the expression.

We are an impulsive people. The earthquake, the volcano, the tidal wave, or any other great force of nature which carries destruction, and results in calamity calls for an outburst of sympathy which is overwhelming while it lasts, but which subsides more rapidly than it flows.

We are also a nation of hero worshippers, and the "man of the hour" is as necessary to our frenzied life as the air we breathe.

Just now the victim happens to be Citizen Roosevelt and the humblest citizen goes wild with enthusiasm at the mention of his name.

A gentleman who attended the conservation congress in St. Paul, last week, said that the reception tendered President Taft was a "frost" compared with the enthusiasm which greeted the ex-President. This is hero worship gone wild.

Colonel Roosevelt is the most popular man living today and it is natural that the American people should be proud of him, but President Taft is entitled to more consideration than he is receiving.

When Admiral Dewey sailed into the New York harbor, the victor of Manilla Bay, he was the hero of the hour, but he was married and forgotten in a week.

When Hobson piloted his boat to voluntary destruction at Santiago his name was heralded across the land as the greatest living hero of his day, but a kiss betrayed his weakness and he became the butt of ridicule.

Just what false step Colonel Roosevelt may make to add his name to the list of derelicts may not be foreseen, but the nation has never had but one President, and an effort to maintain two at the same time will result in disaster.

Speaking of hero worship the Wall Street Journal makes the following very sensible comment:

"When the gods desire to inflict their extreme punishment upon a mortal they give him his heart's desire, if he is an American politician they make him the idol of the mob. They swell his self-esteem to the bursting point, knowing the unspokeable agony of collapse."

"They grant him the imperishable praise of the mildest and least thoughtful element among a self-governing people. They value him by that means to pinacles undreamed of only to accelerate the velocity of his fall."

"The hero needs not to be a politician to receive from the American people their deadliest gift. He may be feted today and spat upon tomorrow, like Admiral Dewey, or blazed across the country last week and loaded with ridicule this, like Hobson."

"But inevitably whenever this people raise a man conspicuously above the level of his fellows by popular acclaim, irrespective of comparative merit, it breaks its idol afterwards as certain as the dawn of day. It is not worth discussing whether the American public will do this thing to Theodore Roosevelt. The only question is, when?"

"Probably there is nobody in politics who has had better opportunity for estimating the value of popular clamor than Mr. Roosevelt. No one has turned such enthusiasm to more dexterous and successful use. We do not suggest that in the main Mr. Roosevelt has consciously misused this overwhelming torrent of articulate public opinion. We are inclined to believe that his conscience is at rest, because it is his most striking characteristic that he believes the thing he wishes for to be right, because he wishes it."

"Many shrewd observers believe that Mr. Roosevelt has passed his zenith in popular favor. Such observers have been constantly wrong in their estimate of his possibilities. It is quite conceivable and even likely that he may be experiencing popular disdain by the next presidential election."

"It may be to the last degree improbable that he will ever receive another term of office at the White House.
He may be covered with ridicule by 1912, but there is one fact which the business world believes to remember.
He may not be the next republican candidate for President, but whatever happens to him short of death, no other republican candidate can be elected without his approval."

"This was the case with William J. Bryan for twelve years. The Roosevelt following forms a nucleus of the republican party far greater than any Bryan really commanded. Whatever Mr. Roosevelt's future standing with the populace may be, there will remain sufficient people trusting him in spite of everything to upset any other republican candidate, and these only the lingering processes of the years can annihilate."

JUST MOTHER.

Baby O'Connor, aged fourteen months, fell off a barge into the water.

Mrs. O'Connor, wife of the barge captain and mother of the baby, jumped in after it.

Mrs. O'Connor could not swim, and she almost drowned. But when she went down she held the baby up above her head and out of the water. There some men came and pulled out mother and babe.

Well—
There was nothing especially strange about a mother jumping into the water to save her baby.

It would have been strange and unnatural had Mrs. O'Connor refused to jump.

So the newspaper that told about the happening put the news item under a small heading and into a corner.
There was no big news in the fact that a mother followed her babe into the ocean in order to save it. It was the natural thing for a mother to do.

Mothers risk their lives when their children are born, and they stand ready to offer their lives at any moment thereafter.

It has been so since the first mother
And the martyrdom is taken for granted.
When she risks, struggles, suffers, lives and dies for the children it is—
"Just mother."

"That is why mother often steezes in the kitchen while the girls swing in the hammock or play the piano; that is why mother sits up to darn the boys' socks while they have a good time.
Mother spends her slight strength, ob-liviates her individuality, that the children may shine, because she is—
"Just mother."

It is the way of the mother the world around. It is expected of her. Her way is by the way of the cross.
Sometimes it may be father wakes up to say, "Mother looks tired; you girls ought to help her more," or "You girls should put your things in place and save your mother so many steps."
But usually father does not realize, nor the children, until mother has given her last full measure of devotion and sleeps her last sleep.

Jump after her baby?
Why—

Put all the mothers in the world on the shore and drop all the babies in the water and all the mothers will jump after the babies—every mother of them!

Albany, N. Y.—The fight for the control of the state convention, which state political fight of recent years. On the one side are Timothy L. Woodruff, chairman of the state committee; William Barnes, Jr., of Albany; James W.

Wadsworth, speaker of the assembly, who are opposed to many policies advocated by Governor Hughes and Colonel Roosevelt. On the other side will be the fight led by Colonel Roosevelt himself, backed by Lloyd C. Griscom.

VEGETABLE CUTTER

Potato Rotated Over Cutting Blade
and Strips Fall Into Pan.

A vegetable cutter that will save the cook many tedious minutes has been designed by a Missouri man. It will slice a potato or turnip into small pieces while a person is getting ready to do the work by hand, and will make the slice a comparatively uniform size, which is sometimes desirable. The cutter consists of a base board with a slicing blade fastened to it over an aperture and raised just enough to permit the cuttings to drop through this hole into the pan or tub below. Standards rise from the base on either end and a supporting arm is hinged to one of these and rests on the other, thus the lower side of this arm is a vegetable holder, and so that it can be rotated by a short and simple rising above it, like the handle of a coffee mill. The vegetable is fastened in this holder by lifting the supporting arm and inserting it underneath. Then the arm is lowered until the vegetable comes in contact with the slicing blade, when the crank is turned and the cutting performed.

The Veiled Foulard, the Summer's Popular Model.

The simple little foulard frock, short enough to trot about in, yet made handsome enough to meet the requirements of any occasion by a tulle of chiffon, is the dominant style note of the summer. Many changes have been rung on this idea, none more attractive than the dainty costume pictured—a violet and white checked foulard, veiled with wistaria chiffon on which is a border design of colored ruffled trimming. Bands of violet velvet emphasize the delicate wistaria tone of the chiffon tulle, but the crocheted buttons are in the pale lavender tint. The jacket, with drawn in skirt and a bolero top falling over the foulard girde, is decidedly chic.

MISS "JOHNNIE" DAVIDSON.

Heiress Acquitted of Murdering Sister's Sutor to be Married.

Joplin, Mo.—Miss "Johnnie" Davidson, the former Neosho heiress, who killed Roy Ramsour, her sister's sutor, in June, 1908, and was acquitted in May, 1909, will marry Clarence A. Payne of Joplin. A marriage license was granted to them at Carthage.

The girl's trial was one of the most famous hearings in the history of the courts of the southwest. She killed Ramsour after he persisted in attentions to Grace Davidson, Miss "Johnnie's" younger sister, which were repulsed.

The beauty of the defendant and the sensational incidents connected with the case made it of unusual interest.

The date of the marriage has not yet been fixed. Miss Davidson declined to discuss the matter.

BALKED IN EXPOSE; PECK'S STORY TOLD

WITNESS TESTIFIES HIGH I. C. OFFICERS REFUSED TO HEED WARNING.

$30,000 A MONTH STOLEN

Former Bookkeeper Peck Says That Statement to Men in Authority Concerning Car Repair Funds Fell on Deaf Ears.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Fruitless endeavor as long ago as 1907 to inform the Illinois Central railroad of the huge losses it was sustaining in its bills for car repair work done at the plant of the Ostermann Manufacturing company were described before Judge Bruggemeyer during the graft hearing by Fred C. Peck, former bookkeeper at the Ostermann plant.

Peck is one of the chief witnesses for the state in the prosecution of Frank B. Hawman and other former officers of the Illinois Central Railroad company on a charge of conspiring to defraud the road by means of padded car repair bills. He declared that not long after he was engaged in a clerical capacity by the Ostermann concern he reached the conclusion that its bills against the Illinois Central company for car repair work were being padded.

Story Told by Peck.
"I first went to C. W. Moore, auditor of disbursements," said Peck. "I asked him if he would be interested in learning how the Illinois Central could save $30,000 a month on car repairs. I had no opportunity to explain matters, as Moore sent me to C. F. Krebs, comptroller of the Illinois Central. When I told Krebs what I would be able to demonstrate he told me that he had a competent corps of men and that he did not believe my information was of any account."

"Did you go to see any other Illinois Central officials?" asked Attorney Walter L. Fisher, special counsel for the company.

"Yes, I paid a visit to William Roushew, superintendent of machinery," replied Peck. "I stated, in substance, what I had told Krebs. Roushew asserted that his corps of men knew all about car repairs and that he did not believe my information would lead to anything."

Quotes Head of Company.
"When I first met Mr. Ostermann, head of the Ostermann Manufacturing company, he had some mining stock to sell," he continued. "In afterward offered me a position at his car repair plant and I went out there to look over the ground. Ostermann remarked to me:

"Don't say anything, but I got three carloads of material from the Illinois Central shops at Hurdsville and I do not expect any bills for them. They will be 'lost.'"

In describing the handling of car repair bills, Peck said:

"After I footed up a bill I put a dot at the bottom of the figures. After the bill was returned to me I could tell by the dot whether any more items had been charged in the bill. Many of the additions were made by C. H. Polley, chief clerk at the plant, and E. H. Ward, another clerk."

"You admit, then, that you were adding them in making out these bills," demanded Attorney S. N. Hoover, counsel for the defendants.

"Yes, that is true."

On further cross-examination Peck said he was not present employed by the Illinois Central.

A point was scored by the defense when Peck admitted that he was unable to point out specific items in the various bills that he knew to be irregular.

CHANDLER IS JILTED AND POOR.
Once Millionaire Now Has $20 a Month From Cavalieri.

Paris, Sept. 10.—Robert Winthrop Chandler, who last June was a millionaire, is now a pensioner on $20 a month allowed him by his wife, Lina Cavalieri. His dream of love has been shattered.

The former sheriff of Dutchess county, artist, society man, and politician, and the grand opera queen, "the most beautiful woman in the world," have parted forever. Cavalieri has Chandler's entire fortune and he is in America penniless.

Many of the details were learned through friends of Chandler in this city. How Chandler was duped by the singer, how she got him to transfer his property to her, how she flouted him after the marriage, and her escapades with a Russian nobleman since the wedding are matters of common knowledge among certain Americans now in Europe.

List of the Dead.
It is declared one of the worst marine disasters in the history of Lake Michigan navigation. The boat was valued at $400,000, and the cargo, which included thirty-two loaded cars, estimated to be worth $150,000.

The Dead:
DEWEY KILTY of Ludington, captain, JOSEPH HREZINSKI, mate, of Manitowish.

W. H. BROWN, second mate, of Ludington.
E. T. SZCZEPANIK, purser, Worcester, Mass.

CHAS. H. HORNCHANS, first assistant engineer, Northport, Mich.

PAUL HENKEL, second assistant engineer, Ludington.
UNKNOWN OILER, Norwegian.

A. J. MACIC, steward, Westfield, N. Y.
W. H. CUMMINS, advertising manager, Chicago.

JOHN SCHRAUFUAM, cook, Milwaukee.
N. L. BRITLAND, passenger, Ludington.

MICHAEL MAYTHALER, fireman, Forestville, Mich.
SAMUEL BOUCHIE, fireman, Hove, Michigan, N. S.

W. PARKIN, fireman, Marine City, Mich.
UNKNOWN FIREMAN.

MRS. MAHON TURNER, cabin maid, Ludington.
PETER HINE, watchman, Ludington.

ONE UNKNOWN LOOKOUT.
JOHN BARKIN, wheelman, Ludington.
JOSEPH MARLOW, scrubber, Ludington.

TOM KELLY and BROTHIE, two steamways, Detroit.
FRANK WATNIE, porter, Chicago.

JACOBSON, seaman, residence unknown.
CHAS. JENNIN, oiler, Ludington.

ELI COLLEMAN, bagman, not believed to be aboard.
JOHN HENNINGSON, watchman, JACOB JACOBSON, scrubber, Ludington.

Car ferry No. 18 was bound from Ludington to Milwaukee with a full cargo of 22 cars, consisting of 11 cars of coal and 11 of miscellaneous freight. It was making its first trip after 60 days under charter to a Chicago excursion company.

Survivors Reach Milwaukee.
At the sacrifice of two of her own seamen, and after terrible hours of struggle the steel car ferry Pere Marquette No. 17, which went to the assistance of No. 18, reached this port with three dead, and twenty-nine survivors of the crew of her sister ship.

Twelve of the rescued were in one of the ship's boats, the remainder were clinging to the wreckage or floating about buffeted by the debris.

See No. 18 Sink.
The catastrophe occurred approximately thirty miles off from Port Washington, No. 17, bound from Milwaukee for Ludington, reached the wreck just as the No. 18 sank out of sight. Several miles away a lone boat was floundering in the surge and swell of the waves, and on all sides were the shrieks and screams of the poor wretches soaked through and through with the almost ice-cold water and gripped by the strong winds. Only a few had time to dress.

The Pere Marquette No. 20, out from Ludington bound for Milwaukee and manned by a crew most of whom came from the same city as those on the sunken vessel, was the third craft to reach there. Just prior to its arrival the fishing tug Tealer, out from Port Washington, had picked up six dead, among them Capt. Kilty, which were transferred to the No. 17 and taken back to Ludington.

Cause of Disaster Unknown.
In marine circles it is believed that the string of twenty-eight cars became loose as the ferry was buffeted about and that the water rolled into the vessel's stern, which is wide open. This seems plausible in view of the fact that the sea was rolling from the north, the most dangerous on Lake Michigan, while the steamer was heading southwest by south.

The ill-fated car ferry, which has contributed the first fall disaster on the lakes this year, was built in Cleveland twelve years ago at a cost of $450,000. It was fully insured, as were the cars and contents.

Three steamers have reached here from the scene of the wreck, but only wild theories are given as to the cause of the wreck.

WARSHIP'S DAMAGE SLIGHT.
North Dakota Will Be Ready to Resume Target Practice Monday.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Admiral Schreeder, commanding the Atlantic fleet, has notified the navy department that the Dreadnought North Dakota can make repairs and take part in the target practice of the fleet probably on Monday. The damage done her by the explosion of fuel oil is slight.

Dead.
Chicago, Sept. 10.—Ella J. Warner, senior member of the grocery firm of Sprague, Warner & Co., multi-millionaire and philanthropist, died very suddenly at his home in Lake Forest last night. Death was due to a stroke of apoplexy.

U. S. Furnishes City Water.
The town of Carlsbad, N. M., will receive its water supply from the irrigation system of the Carlsbad project. A contract for five years, which has been approved by the secretary of the interior, provides that the town is to pay the government at the rate of $1.25 per acre foot, which is the price at which water was rented to agricultural lands within the project. This represents a net annual income of eight per cent on the construction charge investment.

The Ticklemouse

—and his Sleepyland Adventures

By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

Bewitched Baseball

THE Business Men's nine shook their heads at Mr. Dover when he brought Davy and Dorfy to the bench, the day of the great Doverville game.

But the twins' father was firm. "I've promised them they should sit beside me on the bench," he said, "and here they stay. They're our mascots, this game—and where should mascots sit if not on the same bench with their nine?" The twins just smiled happily, for they knew their father would have his way. And he did.

The Business Men won the toss, and came up first to bat. Davy and Dorfy felt very proud when their father, as if in answer to their shrill cries of "Knock her clear out of sight, daddy!" sent the ball whistling over the head of the Farmers' right fielder for a home run. The twin mascots stamped and cheered, and the captain putted them both and told them they were bringing their nine good luck, and might sit on the players' bench as often as they liked.

In the very same inning, though, the poorest batter in the Farmers' line brought in a home run and tied the score. The twins got very excited, but somehow forgot to yell and clap their hands, this time!

"Too bad Mr. Ticklemouse isn't here," whispered Dorfy to her brother. "I just know he'd love to see this game!"

"Yes," answered the little boy, "and Willy Wishingshouse, too!"

Neither of them heard the low, bubbling chuckle that came from beneath the bench. And nobody saw the black, dancing eyes that watched the game every bit as sharply as the twins themselves!

Before the Business Men's nine realized it, the first half of the ninth inning was over—and they were only one run ahead of the Farmers! The twins sat very still now, for they knew that a single lucky hit would tie the score for the Farmers, and two runs would give them the victory.

"Hooray!" they yelled, a few minutes later, when the Farmers' shortstop failed to make first base on a stubborn little bunt. And "Oh-h-h!" they groaned, when the captain of the Farmers also tried a bunt and did get to first. Their faces grew longer and longer as a third Farmer singled and was quickly followed by a two-bagger which brought the captain home, tying the score!

"Stop 'em, somebody!" groaned Mr. Dover, for though the third Farmer was caught out at third base, the fourth batter had made second safely—and the best batter on the Farmers' nine stood over the plate.

Somebody did stop them. Nobody saw little Willy stand on one leg and squint one eye, but the swift drop curve suddenly shot up just before it reached the bat. One strike! Again—two strikes!

"He can't find the ball!" roared Mr. Dover. "Give him another sizzler!" The pitcher looked puzzled—for he had meant to pitch a drop each time. He pitched a third, which shot upward as strangely as before—strike three! The game was over!

"That ball sure was bewitched!" said the pitcher to the twin mascots, as they walked home together. The twins had begun to suspect, by this time, that Willy had been up to his tricks—and that might be confessed. But the players never knew the secret—they laid it all to their twin mascots!

HE NEVER DONE THAT BEFORE.

"Pedler's Acre"

Lambeth (Eng.) "Old" Church has numerous historic monuments, and in one of the windows is the full length figure of a pedler with his pack, staff and dog. This is supposed to represent the unknown person who presented "Pedler's Acre" to the parish upon condition that his portrait and that of his beloved canine companion should be preserved in the church and that his dog should be buried in consecrated ground.

Saying Grace.

I own that I am disposed to say grace upon 20 other occasions in the course of the day besides my dinner. I want a form for setting out upon a pleasant walk, for a moonlight ramble, for a friendly meeting, or a solved problem. Why have we none for books, those spiritual repasts—a grace before Milton—a grace before Shakespeare—a devotional exercise proper to be said before reading the "Faery Queen"?—Charles Lamb

Ibsen and the Greek Drama.

You say Ibsen's "Ghosts" is like a Greek play because no catastrophe happens on the stage. I can't feel that. It seems to me rank where a Greek play would be strong. . . . The Greeks are wild to kill themselves because they have outraged convention, the Scandinavians are wild to kill convention because it has outraged them. —From "Gathered Leaves" of Mary E. Coleridge.

"A Toothsome Flavor"
True for you, there's a treat in the crisp, nutty, delicate sweet taste of Grape-Nuts served with cream or milk.
(Don't spoil the food by trying to cook it. That work is done and perfectly done at the factories.)
The cream should soften it a bit, but not enough to excuse the teeth from at least a few good earnest
"chews" for old Dame Nature sends rich blessings to the long chewer. Of course, the one with weak teeth can soften the food with milk down to a mush if necessary, but the good old Damo doesn't smile quite so cheerfully on them.
You know, children and adults must use the teeth and grind freely to make them grow strong and to preserve them. Then the act of chewing brings down the much needed saliva from the gums, and that helps immensely in the digestion of foods of various kinds.
The saliva is not so much required with Grape-Nuts, for this food is partially pre-digested, that is, the starch turned into a form of sugar in the process of making, and that helps give it the fascinating flavor.
Grape-Nuts people are healthy and enjoy good things. "There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville" in place. "There's a reason."

Plowman Plods His Weary Way.
To turn a single acre of ground with a 12-inch furrow requires 8 1/2 miles of heavy furrow travel, a writer in the World's Work says. In plowing one square mile of land the solitary plowman and his horse must walk 5,280 miles. It would be easier (and the distance is less) to walk around the earth at the equator (if there were no ocean) than to follow a plow turn, a prairie of five square miles. To equal our national tale of plowing—the work of myriads of teams, each using force sufficient to move seven tons over a good stone road—it would take an army of 4,550 plowmen to travel as far as from the earth to the moon and back again.

For the world's yearly labor of this kind it would send about 80,000 men on that same 5,000-mile journey.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.
An ointment will surely destroy the action of small and completely destroy the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reliable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good they can possibly derive from them. Catarrh, Cystitis, Gonorrhea, etc., are caused by a germ, and the germ is not destroyed by mercury, and is taken internally, and taken internally and must be taken internally and must be taken internally.

Janeville to have a great 'Made in Janeville' display

September 29th, 30th and Oct. 1st is the time set for a display of Janeville manufactured goods in the windows of the different retail stores throughout the city.

The Secretary of the local club has already received a dozen or more assurances from as many manufacturers that they will make displays on the days given above. The idea of this display week is to acquaint local and county people with what is made in Janeville.

Practically every retailer in the city has already given consent to the use of one or more windows for this display. As fast as possible Secretary Louis G. DeArmand will visit all the manufacturers and get them all to agree to display the goods they make in the window or windows allotted to them.

As far as possible the displays made by the manufacturers will be entirely foreign to the lines carried by the retailer in whose window the display appears. As an example the Budget Milling Co. will make a display in the Peoples' Drug Co., etc., etc. By carrying out this plan such a display of local manufactured goods will not only be attractive but the oddity of it will be the means of attracting many people to the city from all over this county.

INDUSTRIAL AND COMMERCIAL CLUB.

NEVER ANY INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA OR SICK, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH

Your out-of-order Stomach feels fine five minutes after taking a little Diapypain.

Take your sour out-of-order stomach—maybe you call it indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or catarrh of the stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Papo's Diapypain and let you eat 22-gram Triangles and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the digestive organs become weak; there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, flatulency, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is feeble and nothing tempt you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can get up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as new; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you; it is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapypain.

DURING the evening Emerson left the two other men in the store, and, seeking Cherry out in the little parlor, asked her to play for him. Again the blending of their voices brought them closer, his closeness was off, and he became an agreeable, accomplished companion whose merry wit and boyish sympathy stirred emotions in the girl that threatened her peace of mind. It was their last hour together before embarking on his perilous journey in search of the golden fleece, and his starved affections clung to her sympathy, while the boy in his blood felt the magnetic proximity of sex. For her part, she lay awake far into the morning hours, now blissfully floating on the current of half formed desires, now vaguely fearing some dread that eluded her.

"GOODBY! THAT'S MY ANSWER!" the forlorn droop of her lips stayed him. Without thought of consequences and prompted largely by his leaping spirits, he stooped and, before she could divine his purpose, kissed her.

"Goodbye," he laughed, with dancing eyes. "That's my answer!" And the next second he was at the sled. The dogs leaped at his shout, and the cavalcade was in motion.

But the girl stood without sound or gesture, unheeded under the wintry sky, a startled, wondering light in her eyes which did not fade until the men were lost to view far up the river trail. Then she breathed deeply and turned into the house, oblivious to Constans and the young squaw, who held the sick baby up for her inspection.

The hazards of winter travel in the north are manifold at best, but the country which Emerson and his companions had to traverse was particularly perilous owing to the fact that their course led them over the backbone of the great Alaskan range, that desolate, skyscraping rampart which

LITTLE DAUGHTER HAD SCALP HUMOR

Itched So that She Scratched Until Blood Came. Hair Fell Out. Scalp had Unpleasant Odor. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment Four Weeks. Scalp Perfectly Clear.

Hair Began to Grow Again and Now Has Beautiful, Long Hair.

"When my little daughter was about five years old, she was taken with the measles. A few weeks after the measles were gone, she began to have a severe scalp humor. It itched so that she would scratch the whole day, until the blood came. We had a doctor and tried a good many other remedies, but nothing helped. The hair all fell out and the scalp itself had an unpleasant odor. After we had tried all the other remedies, my wife told me to try the Cuticura Remedy. We bought one cake of Ointment, and one box of Cuticura Soap, and used them according to directions and in about three or four weeks her scalp was perfectly clear of the terrible humor. Her hair began to grow again and now she has beautiful, long hair. Since that time I have recommended the Cuticura Remedy to other people and they also had success. Mrs. S. J. Brennan, Amana, Iowa, Nov. 8, 1909."

interposes itself between the hate of the Arctic seas and the tossing wilderness of the north Pacific.

A week of hard travel found the party camped in the last fringe of cottonwood that fringed the glacial slopes, their number augmented now by a native from a Russian village with an unpronounceable name, who, at the price of an exorbitant bribe, had agreed to pilot them through. For three days they lay idle, the trust of their tent threatening to be an incessant fusillade of ice particles that whirled down ahead of the blast, while Emerson fumed to be gone.

The fourth morning broke still and quiet, but after a careful scrutiny of the peaks the Indian shook his head and spoke to Balt, who nodded in agreement.

"What's the matter?" growled Emerson. "Why don't we get under way?" But the other replied:

"Not today. These tips are smoking, see?" He indicated certain gauzy streamers that floated like vapor from the highest pinacles. "That's snow, dry snow, and it shows that the wind is blowing up there. We dussent tackle it."

"Do you mean we must lie here waiting for an absolutely calm day?" "Exactly."

"Why, it may be a week!" "It may be two of them; then, again, it may be all right tomorrow."

"Nonsense! That breeze won't hurt anybody."

"Breeze?" Balt laughed. "It's more like a tornado up yonder. No! We've just got to take it easy till the right moment comes and then make a dash. It's thirty miles to the nearest stick of timber, and once you get into the pass you can't stop till you're through."

The next dawn showed the mountain peaks lined like clean cut ivory against the steel blue sky, and as they crept up through the dingles the air was so motionless that the smoke of their pipes hung about their heads, while the creek of their sleds upon the dry surface of the snow raised echoes from the walls on either side.

At first their progress was rapid, but in time the drifts grew deeper and they came to bluffs where they were forced to notch footholds, unpack their load and relay it to the top, then free the dogs and haul the sled up with a rope hand-over-hand.

It was early in the afternoon when the Indian stopped and began testing the air.

"Feels like wind," said Balt, with a shake of his head. The native began to chatter excitedly, and as they stood there a cold draft fanned their cheeks. Little wisps of snow vapor began to dance upon the ridges, whirling out of sight as suddenly as they appeared. They became conscious of a sudden fall in the temperature and they knew that the cold of interstellar space dwelt in that ghostly breath which smote them. Before they were well aware of the ominous significance of these signs the storm was upon them, sweeping through the chute wherein they stood with rapidly increasing violence. The terrible unseen hand of the frozen north had unleashed its brood of furies, and the air rang with their hideous cries.

There was no question of facing the wind, for it was more cruel than the fierce breath of an open furnace scorching the flesh like a flame.

All the morning the air had hung in perfect poise, but some change of temperature away out over one of the rival oceans had upset the nerostatic balance, and the wind tore through this gap like the torrent below a broken reservoir.

Balt came close to Emerson and belated into his ear:

"What shall we do? Roll up in the bedding or run for it?" "How far is it to timber?" "Twenty or fifteen miles."

Further, and Balt, who had once made the trip, took his place, while the others dragged the poor creature along at the cost of their precious strength.

They had long since lost all track of time and place, trusting blindly to a downward course. The hurricane still hurried them with unabated fury, when all at once they came to another bluff where the ground fell away abruptly. Without waiting to investigate whether the slope terminated in a drift or a precipice, they flung themselves over. Down they floundered, the two half-sensible men tangled together as if in a race for total oblivion, only to plunge through a thicket of willow tops that whipped and stung them. On they went, now vastly heartened, over another ridge, down another declivity, and then into a grove of spruce timber, where the air suddenly stilled, and only the treetops told of the rushing wind above.

It was well nigh an hour before Balt and Emerson succeeded in starting a fire, for it was desperate work groping for dry branches, and they themselves were on the verge of collapse before the timid blaze finally showed the two more unfortunate ones huddled together.

Cherry had given Emerson a flask of liquor before starting, and this he now divided between Fraser and the guide, buying wisely refused to them until shelter was secured. Then he melted snow in Balt's tin cup and poured pints of hot water into the pair until the adventurer began to rally, but the Aleut was too far gone, and an hour before the laggard dawn came he died.

The day was well spent when they struggled into Kamut and plodded up to a half rotted log store. A glacial quarter breed Russian trader took them in and administered to their most crying needs.

As soon as Emerson was able to talk he inquired concerning the mail boat.

"She called here three days ago, bound west," said the trader.

"That's all right. She'll be back in about a week, eh?"

"She won't stop coming back."

"What?" Emerson felt himself sickening.

"No; she won't call here till next month, and then if it's storming she'll go on to the westward and land on her way back."

"How long will that be?" "Maybe seven or eight weeks."

In his weakened condition the young man groped for the counter to support himself. So the storm's delay at the foot of the pass had undone him! Fate, in the guise of winter, had unfurled those floating snow banners from the mountain peaks to thwart him once more!

Out of consideration for his companions Emerson did not recount them with the well things until the next morning; moreover, he was swallowed up in black despair and had no heart left in him for any further exertion. He had allowed the Russian to show him to a bed, upon which he flung himself, half dressed, while the others followed suit.

Emerson fell into a deep sleep, and it was late in the day when he awoke, every muscle aching, every joint stiff, every step attended with pain. He found his companions up and already breakfasted. Big George none the worse for his ordeal, while Fraser, handaged and smarting, was his old shrewd self.

"Have you heard about the mail boat?" asked Emerson.

"No."

"We've missed her."

"What d'you mean?" demanded Big George bluntly.

"I mean that that storm delayed us just long enough to ruin us."

"Why—er—let's wait till the next trip," offered the fisherman.

Emerson shook his head. "She may not be back here for eight weeks. No! We're done for."

Balt was like a big boy in distress. His face wrinkled as if he were about to burst into loud lamentations. Then a thought seized him.

"Where in blazes is this steamer?" he cried.

"Out to the westward somewhere."

"Well, she's a mail boat, ain't she? Then why don't she stop here coming back? Answer me."

The round man shrugged his fat shoulders. "She's got to call at Uyak bay going east."

GOOD NEWS.

Many Janesville Readers Have Heard It and Profited Thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in Janesville are glad to learn that prompt relief is within their reach. Many a lame, weak and aching back is but no more, thanks to Don's Kidney Pills. Thousands upon thousands of people are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

John Pollard, Edgerton, Wis., says: "I have used Don's Kidney Pills at different times for several years and in view of the good results I received, I have no hesitation in recommending them. I suffered for some time from a dull pain in the small of my back and I was caused much annoyance by disordered kidneys. When Don's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I decided to give them a trial and procured a box. They gave me relief in a short time and before long I was free from the trouble. Since then, whenever I have felt any symptoms of a return, I have at once taken Don's Kidney Pills, and they have never failed to drive away the attack. I know Don's Kidney Pills to be a reliable kidney remedy."

Liverpool's Costly Docks.

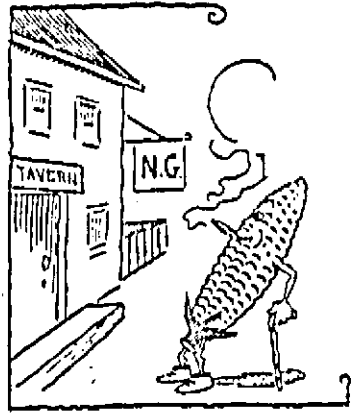

Liverpool's docks, which are to be further extended at a cost of over $10,000,000, were begun in 1793, when the town constructed the first wet dock in the world. Down to 1813 the docks were confined to the Liverpool side of the Mersey, but in that year Birkenhead's dock scheme was begun. Liverpool owes its very origin to its suitability for a port, having been founded when the siting of the Dee robbed Chester of its position as chief port for north Ireland. After Sir John Bowring's partial conquest of the island under Henry II, a fresh port was needed, and the foundations of what is now Liverpool were laid.

Low Pay of Welsh Ministers.

The lot of the average Welsh Non-conformist minister is not enviable. It was disclosed at the annual conference of the Welsh Congregational Union recently that many ministers receive as little as $3.75 and $1.75 a week. Taking the whole of Wales, one minister out of three has to be content with a stipend of less than $100 a year, and 12 per cent. receive from $250 to $400 a year.

From Lucile's Diary

Carl Bates has been so very nice to me ever since I met him at Lakeside a few weeks ago that I was anxious to give some sort of party, to which I could invite him. So I suggested to Louise Irwin that we have a quartet beach supper at Jackson park.

"If you'll take some of your delicious sandwiches and cake," I said to her, "I'll provide fruit and the wine—wursts and marshmallows to toast in the beach fire."

Louise did not look transported at what I considered a rather magnificent arrangement, so I continued: "I always envy your ability, dear. If I could make as dainty things to eat as you do I should be very proud, indeed."

"Well, I can bake some of my new English cheese cakes," she said, quite amiably.

"Oh, that will be splendid," I exclaimed. "I'll ask Mr. Bates to bring his English friend, Lionel Hawley. The cakes will be in his honor," I added, merrily.

"But I intended to invite Canby Fuller," she objected.

"Oh, you can entertain him some other time," I explained. "You see, I'm getting up this little party especially for Mr. Bates and, of course, the proper thing is to invite also his most intimate friend. I should think you'd be glad to meet a new man once in a while."

Louise must have taken this remark of mine to heart, for on the way out in Aunt Rachel's motor car—which I borrowed of her chauffeur, telling him that Aunt Rachel would like to have me use it occasionally while she was out of town—Louise was exceedingly attentive to Mr. Hawley. I was quite mortified, for I naturally wished him to have a true idea of the dignity and reserve of American girls. When we got to the beach, I suggested to Louise that she unpack her basket while the men built a fire.

"Where are your things?" she asked. "Why, I explained, 'I thought the wine-wursts wouldn't be appropriate on such a hot night.'"

"But where are your other things?" persisted Louise.

If she had had any tact she would have grasped the fact that I had forgotten the fruit and marshmallows. Her inquiries were most inconsiderate. "If there's anything needed I can get it over at the German building," suggested Mr. Bates.

"That's awfully good of you," I said. "I'll have the chauffeur make the fire while you're gone." Then I gayly warned Mr. Hawley when he started to assist Louise. "You mustn't go near Miss Brown's basket," I said, "for there's a surprise in it for you. Come and sit down by me."

When he did as I directed I said: "I'm getting so engrossed in palmistry that I should like to read the lines in your hand. May I see them?"

"Awfully kind of you," replied Mr. Hawley, extending his palm.

I read it quite successfully. I told him that he was ambitious and energetic and that his fate line had brought him across many waters to a pleasant destiny. He seemed much impressed. So did Mr. Bates when he returned. He wanted his hand read also, and it took me nearly the whole evening to interpret fully the lines in his and his friend's palms. "The glow of the firelight made my little attempt at fortune telling and character study seem quite romantic and oriental."

"Isn't your knowledge of palmistry extremely recent?" asked Louise in the midst of my interpretations. "I never knew you were such an expert, Lucile."

"You don't know all my accomplishments," I laughingly replied. "Now, dear, we must have those delicious tea cakes of yours."

I am sure that both Carl and Mr. Hawley admitted by rotund courtesies. But, notwithstanding my perfect good humor, Louise appeared glum. She said so little while we ate that I had to exert myself to be entertaining. The more I laughed and talked the deeper her gloom became. Poor Louise is so crude.

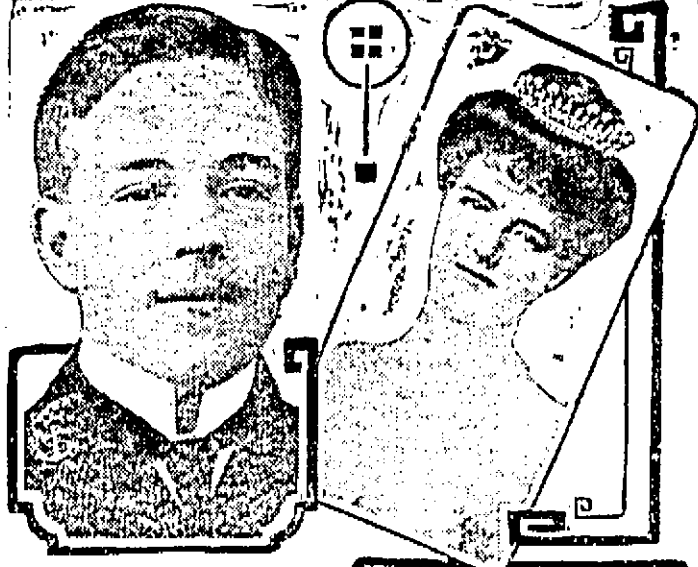

Although she added so little to the evening, I enjoyed it very much myself. Indeed, if Aunt Rachel had not telephoned the next day and upbraided me for borrowing her car I should look back on the beach party as an extremely pleasant memory.

I think Aunt Rachel is ungenerous and unreasonable to be annoyed because I happened to have her automobile the night she came home unexpectedly from the country. She should have telegraphed her chauffeur early in the day instead of waiting till nearly the time she wanted him to meet her. It is surprising how thoughtless some people are even about their own affairs.

Human-Headed Rooster.
A man in Boston who handles "freaks" for showmen and whose duty it is to weed out the false freaks, states that he is annoyed more frequently by men who offer to sell him human-headed roosters than by any other class of vendors.

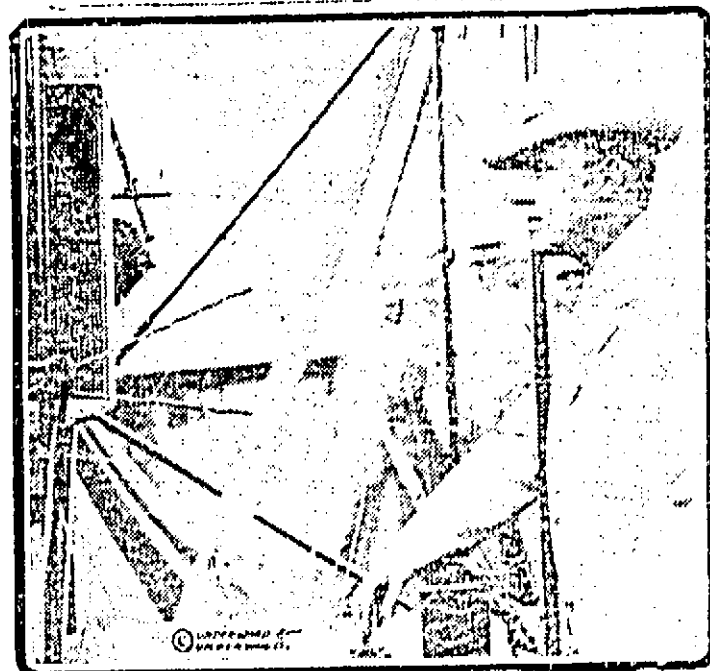

It seems that human-headed roosters have been on the market ever since the Civil war. They are not difficult to make, a mask which does not interfere with the roostiness of the hen's protector being firmly cemented to the upper bill of the bird. All that is then needed is a purchaser and an open-faced audience. It may be put down that the human-headed rooster is a fraud.

PORTUGUESE THRONE TOTTERS
Palace of King of Portugal, the youthful king and his queen mother.

Lisbon, Madrid.—The Portuguese throne is apparently tottering and may fall at any moment. It is the current belief that the youthful king is a refugee in one of the fortresses, fearing his daily his downfall. The queen mother feels the present crisis keenly. It is claimed that the downfall is due to the plotting of the clerical party, who wish to see a military dictator ship established.

AIRSHIP EQUIPPED WITH WIRELESS.

First picture of the tiny wireless telegraphic apparatus designed by H. H. Horton and placed on Curtiss biplane. This is the first experiment of the kind ever attempted and the results so far obtained have demonstrated clearly that the wireless will be practical, especially in signalling war maneuvers. Dr. C. P. Everett of the Signal Corps, New York National Guards, is seen sending the message.

"If it comes from Ashcraft's it must be good."

We are glad that this is true and so recognized. We surely do all in our power to make it so and we have worked hard to gain this confidence.

It is a delight to choose the needed piece from a collection of furniture which has one's unquestioning confidence. It is doubly agreeable when one has the feeling that no excess is being paid or asked for the faith itself. In other words, people enjoy paying full value for superior things, but do not like to feel that they are paying an additional sum for the privilege of exerting their own judgment. People who buy at Ashcraft's know that not only are they getting the best but at prices the best values anywhere.

The First Consideration of This School Is to Have Things Done Exactly Right

The business world is every day demanding a higher grade of service from the young men and women who would enter its employ. The demand for LOW GRADE office assistants is lessening, but for those who are willing to become PROFICIENT, the chances for success are superior to those of any other profession.

In securing a business education, as well as anything else which entails an expenditure of money, the COST is an item of interest. In computing the cost, QUALITY should be the chief consideration. It is not what you pay for anything, but what it is worth that determines its value. Institutions galore offer courses similar in name to ours BUT THEY DO NOT GIVE AS MUCH SATISFACTION FOR A DOLLAR AS WE DO. Our courses are so thorough, so comprehensive, so well taught, that it costs more than many others, BUT IT PAYS MUCH MORE IN THE END.

Always Secure the Best Paying Positions

Years of experience both in the office and schoolroom has enabled us to make all of our work intensely practical. Everything is reduced to the system and precision found in the modern office. No slipshod work is tolerated. The student who masters our courses will be enabled to command enough EXTRA SALARY in his first position to pay for his course in three months.

THE COURSES IN ALL BUSINESS SCHOOLS ARE NOT ALIKE, no more than the methods practiced of doing business. You want only one business education, therefore see to it that the school YOU attend is recognized as a HIGH STANDARD SCHOOL—a school having the confidence of its own city and community.

Our enrollment this year for the Fall Term is about a third larger than a year ago. There is a reason. THIS IS THE SCHOOL YOU WILL EVENTUALLY ATTEND OR WISH YOU HAD ATTENDED. Enter any day. If you cannot do so now join our
